

LEAD CATALYST: INTERNATIONALS/EXPATS (CHINA)

China is host to the largest number of international students within any single country in Asia and is ranked 3rd globally, just behind the US and UK. The majority of these students come from the Silk Road region rather than the West. This does not begin to account for the growing Expat population that China is welcoming due to its growing economy and status in the world.

Like the US and UK, engaging international students and the broader international population in China is a strategic and vital ministry within global missions. Unlike the US and UK, this type of ministry in China is pioneering because the Chinese church and broader missions community is doing little to engage this population in China.

The Lead Catalyst over this area of ministry will develop and implement strategies to ignite disciple-making movements among international students and the broader international population in China, beginning in our HUB in China and one other major city.

General Duties:

- Develop and implement a strategy to catalyze disciple-making movements that lead toward establishing Biblical Communities specific to the growing and sometimes transient international population.
- Empower house churches and international churches in China to engage the broad international community as a cross-cultural mission field.
- Develop and lead a SRC team focused on China's international community.
- Work in tandem with like-minded missionaries and organizations involved in this pioneering ministry.

Basic Position Requirements

- Endorsement from your local church
- Bachelor's degree in any field
- Proven tract record of disciple-making
- Preferred: International Student Ministry experience
- Entrepreneurial mindset, as you will be the first SRC representative in this area of ministry.
